I had all the distressing symptoms of that terrible disease. I have spent thousands of dollars to arrest the march of this disease; I have employed all of the usual methods, not only in my own case, but in the treatment of other members of my family, but temporary relief was all that I obtained. I was unfit for any minuted labor for several years. By chance I came into possession of a pamphlet on "Blood and Skin Diseases," from the office of Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga. A friend recommended the use of swift's Specific, claiming that he had been greatly benefited by its use in some lung troubles. I resolved to try it. About four years ago I commended to take 8, 8, 8, according to directions. I found it an invigorating tonic, and have used about fifty bottles. The results are most remarkable. My cough has left me, my strength has returned, and I weigh sixty pounds more than I ever did in my life. It has been three years since I stopped the use of the medicine, but I have had no return of the disease, and there are no pains or weakness fell in my lungs. I do the hardest kind of mechanical work, and feel as well as I ever felt since I was a boy. These, I know, are wonderful statements to make, but I am honcet when I say that I owe my existence and health to-day to Swift's Specific. It is the only medicine that brought me any permanent relief. I do not say that Swift's Specific will do his in every case, but most positively affirm that it has done this much for me, and I would be recreamt to the duty I owe to suffering humanity if I failed to bear this cheerful testimony to the merits of this wonderful medicine. At the preachers' meeting yesterday Professor W. W. Smith, president of Randolph-Macon College, was present. He informed the meeting that the friends of the college in Richmond ex-pected at an early day to hold a conference in the interest of the endowment fund, and that the outlook was very favorable for raising quite a large sum. The services at Laurel-Street church last night were attended by a fair congregation. An after-meeting was held, at which four persons asked the prayers of the congregation. The pastor said he expected Mr. Lumpkin to help him again this week. The services begin every night at 7:30 with a prayer-meeting, which lasts till 8, when the sermon begins.

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT.

A Decided Debt-Settling Measure Proposed for Legislative Action. Capitol officers are not yet entirely satisfied that there will be an extra session of the General Assembly; but they think it quite probable that the Governor will call it. If there is an extra session, the con-stitutional amendment will be the fea-

What is suggested is to give bond-holders, say, twelve months in which to fund their holdings into new 3's, and to outlaw after that date all other outstanding indebtedness.
Such an amendment, if agreed to by this General Assembly, would have to be referred to the next General Assembly, and, if adopted by it, would then pects to accomplish great good.

The address of the evening was made by Hon. F. A. Johnson, member of Congress from New York. His theme be submitted to the people at some general or special election for ratification or rejection.

It could be put in force in less than twelve months from this time.

There is difference of opinion among leading Democrats as to the necessity and probable effectiveness of such an amendment to the Constitution. While that is by no means the only debt legislation proposed for an extra session it is the measure likely to claim most attention.

The probability is that if an extra session is called the revisers of the Code will hurry up their work so as to have it ready to be acted on by it.

If the Legislature is to come here on account of the license-taxes it will have to come here by March 15th.

DANVILLE BAILMOAD TO BE RUN TO THE CLYDE WHARF. An Interesting Discussion on the Su ject-Manchester Annexation-

A called meeting of the Commo Council was held last night at 7 o'clock to consider several matters of importance. Present at roll-call: Messre Bethel (president), Ammons, Archer, Bodeker, Bowden, Bryan, Connor, Cutchins, Farrar, Ferriter, Griffin, Hayes, Hudnall, Hughes, Jones, Kau-felt, Kaufman, Kendler, Lange, Molloy, Montgomery, Murphy, Parrater, Par-rish, Spitzer, and Pizzini. RICHMOND AND DANVILLE TRACK EXTEN

The first matter that came up was and Danville Railroad Company to lay a track down Dock or Water street to Ash street, down Ash street to Wharf street, and down Wharf street to Gillie's creek, and a side or branch track into the property of B. F. and Thomas Clyde.

Mr. Parrater moved that the ordinance be rejected.

Mr. Cutchins moved that it be Mr. Bryan moved that the gentlemen who were present in the interest of and against the road be heard, each side fifteen minutes. MR. MEREDITH. Mr. W. R. Meredith, on behalf of the Clyde Line and Virginia Steamboat Railway Company, first addressed the body. He explained the plan of the proposed extension of the track, and claimed that were it not expected to redound to the business good of the city he would not advocate it. He knew that he was on a side op-posed to the interest of the teamsters, but he thought the question reduced itself to the city of Richmond rs. one man, and that one man, he said, with all respect, was Captain Bossieux. This gentleman, Mr. Meredith said, had the contract for carrying freight for the Clyde Line to and from the Richmond and Danville depôt. For this he received $6,178.45 a year. He did not like to see any man's business jeepardized, but the city should not hold back on such a point, and if the Richmond Council did not pass the ordinance the Clyde Line would be com-pelled by the exigencies of traffic to leave Richmond and move to the Manchester side, or be made to go to West Point, as the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company had forced the Old

Mr. Meredith added that if this ordinance were passed, and if it became necessary in consequence for Captain Bossieux to discharge any of his teamsters, he would promise any of them em-ployment by the Clyde Company.

Mr. Meredith made an able speech,

Mr. Meredith made an able speech, and set forth the points involved in a comprehensive manner. MAJOR STILES.

He was followed by Major Robert Stiles on behalf of Captain Bossieux.

Major Stiles was sorry, he said, that his client had been picked out as the one man who was opposed to the business progress of this city. That, he claimed, was not so, for Cyrus Bossicux had been working since the day of his birth to build up Richmond. The speaker said that Mr. Meredith had made a number of pretty promises about what the Clyde Line was going to do, and if they were made conditions precedent to granting the ordinance not one of these promises were in black and white; not one could the company be held liable for. Besides, Meredith had said that Mr. Clyde would cut his sticks and move away from Richmond to West Point. That talk, he maintained, had been heard before, and at a time when Mr. Clyde was interested in the Richmond and Danville system, and it was to his interest to build up West Point, which was on the Danville system. But it was well known that Mr. Clyde had sold out his interest in the Danville company, and it was hardly probable that he would go away now.

Major Stiles would also look at the matter in a different aspect. Putting his client aside, he would speak on behalf of the business-men of the city, who did not want the city streets to be given away to railroad and steamboat corporations. The Council had had some experience, he thought, in regaining control of some of the thoroughfares which had once been given to some company, which ran and killed people, and the citizens could do nothing. Not only Captain Bossieux owned and ran wagons. Other team-sters and merchants have teams carry-ing freight, and the manufacture of roughfares which had once been given their wagons, the manufacture and shoeing of their horses and mules, was no inconsiderable item, and he hoped the Council would not take from a large class of her citizens the only street that was open to heavy traffic.

Colonel John B. Purcell, representing the business-men generally of the city, next spoke. He was in favor of the passage of the ordinance. The nel prefaced his remarks by saying that he was not interested in the Clyde Line or the teamsters' business either. Before he proceeded further he wished to answer the remarks of Major Stile about West Point and Mr. Clyde.

Mr. Clyde, as owner or controller of of the Richmond and Danville railroad, desired to have West Point built up, and forced the company to run its line there. terest here and ownsproperty here, and he is now trying to conserve the in-terests of the two, and the Richmond and Danville system can force him to move to West Point at any time. The Colonel ventured to say that in six months time, if you pass this ordinance, the Old Dominion Line will say we will go back to Richmond instead of running a separate line of steamers to West Point, and there we can get con-trol of local as well as through freight. Colonel Purcell did not believe that Captain Bossieux's interests would be injured, but improved by the extension; and, besides, he did not believe that the line would interfere with street traffic any more than the street-cars on Main street do now. With a railroad running right to the wharf Richmon ome a commercial city, Colonel Purcell's address was for ble and was listened to attentively.

. COLONEL JAMES. In the same strain followed Colonel W. A. James in advocacy of the road on behalf of the cotton interests. He showed how the latter could be subserved if the extension was made. The Colonel referred to several southern cities where drayage was not required, and where merchants did business in-stead of in Richmond simply on acstead of in Richmond simply on account of this item of expense. He knew of several instances where he could have brought thousands of bales through Richmond if this item of expense was eliminated. This ordinance would accomplish this.

Colonel James gave his views in a business-like way, and exhibited a thorough acquaintance with the subject.

Major Stiles closed the argument in RICHMOND, VA., TUESDAY MORNING, FEBRUARY 22, 1887. reply briefly to the points which had been raised by the speakers on the other side.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

Mr. Bryan spoke in favor of the improvement. He said that he had given the matter great thought, and, after a thorough examination of the subject pro and con, had arrived at the conclusion that it would be beneficial to the interests of Richmond.

Mr. Cutchins followed in opposition to the ordinance. He presented a petition, signed by the brickmakers in Rocketts, opposing the extension for several reasons, among which are stated that the street is extremely narrow and it will amount to prohibition of its use; that this is the street used for hauling bricks to various points, it being the bricks to various points, it being the only one leading from the yards. The paper was received and filed.

Mr. Bowden spoke strongly in favor of the ordinance.

Mr. Kaufman and Mr. Hayes followed, also advocating the road.

Mr. Kaufelt presented a petition from citizens of Rocketts favoring the ex-
